DRIVE ROLLING . . .

Director Jerry Bartley said the first four days of magazine and Herald subscriptions sales produced about $5,000 in gross revenue for Yoe High School band.

Much of this was in magazine subscriptions and tapes, for which YHS bandmen receive points along with Herald new and renewal subscriptions.

But the drive started well. Last year, Bartley said, the total magazine drive brought in about $7,300 in the same approximate three-week period.

So it is helpful to have a combination Herald - magazine promotion, which means each new Herald subscriber to from a bandmen sends 50 per cent to the band activity fund and 40 per cent to the band on renewals.

Top point winners for both types of subscriptions -- Herald and magazines and tapes -- are beginning to emerge.

It is proof once again what planning and push in institutions like Yoe Band and Your Herald can do. Drive continues through September 27.

Thanks.

HUD Op ts $500,000 For Refurbishing

The City of Cameron has been awarded a $500,000 contract for modernization of low income public housing through the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

A spokesman for Cong. W. R. Poage, D-Tex, advised The Herald this weekend that the funds will be used to refurbish 50 low-income units, approximately 19 years old, located in northeast Cameron.

Congressional aide John Ben Sutter, of Cameron, said the HUD contract provides that priority in the program be given to "energy conservation and the protection of the structural integrity of the existing building."

The 50-unit development was completed in 1958, about 10 years before a similar cluster of public housing in West Cameron and 14 years before a third federal housing complex on West Sixth St. adjacent to Newton Memorial Hospital.

The HUD contract "obligates the federal government through annual contributions to pay the principle and interest of bonds issued by the Cameron Housing Authority over a period of time in the amount of $500,000," Sutter told The Herald.

The half-million is for updating the existing facilities and does not include any plans for new construction.

This raises building starts and improvements in Cameron well over the million and a quarter mark.

Museum To Aid UT House Survey

The Milam Museum committee has learned that University of Texas architectural students are interested in compiling a survey of old homes in Milam County.

The invitation was announced at a monthly meeting of the Museum directors last week, according to president Mary Belle Batte.

She said the students requested the aid of the museum committee.

Miss Batte said the student group has completed a scale drawing of the museum, formerly the Milam County Jail. Owners of older homes in the county interested in including their homes in the survey can contact Miss Batte or Mrs. Mildred Baker of Rockdale.

Museum directors also discussed tentative plans to place a historical marker on the museum building in October.

Some of the articles and contributors to the Milam Museum are: Cameron Enterprise of Sept. 9, 1928, and certificates signed by governors of Texas covering years of Texas history, picture of Commissioner's Court in 1950's -- Mrs. Jack Tumlinson.

Good Use Of Revenue...

We congratulate Milam County Commissioners for their forward - looking financing not only for precinct equipment out of 1978 revenue sharing funds, but $17,000 for sheriff department cars and technical equipment the department has never had.

Financing for annual audit and auxiliary tax office equipment is likewise forward looking and commendable. This county has gone through considerable controversy and change, but the argument has been positive and productive for county residents. Milam County, for example, still has the lowest unemployment rate in the Cen-Texas area, about 3.1 percent, except for rural Hamilton County with 2.6 percent, but only 3,177 jobs compared to 8,113 for Milam.

Why Give Blood?

Why do you give blood? Many people give only because a loved one has recently used blood. This is good, but who supplied the blood that was on hand when their loved one so desperately needed it.

I can tell you who: An unselfish, anonymous donor who realized the importance of having a plentiful supply of blood on hand, at all hospitals, at all times.

Our Regional Blood Center recently underwent a blood crisis. Of certain types they only had two or three pints available.

If only 10 percent of our population gave blood once a year this would be 500 pints. Yet we can't seem to get 75 people who care enough to share their gift of life with someone else.

Blood is a natural re-

Letters

The Cameron Herald received the following letter from Mrs. George L. Schroeder of Buckholts who remembers the flood of September, 1921.

Dear Sir:
You still debate the 1921 flood on September 8 to 9, 1921. It started after dark, at night. A neighbor of ours had a cistern ready to set up the evening of the 8. But since it was misting he told the men to quit and set it up tomorrow when the sun would shine, so they did, but instead the next morning they had 47 inch water in the thing. We had two water barrels one had a litsibility for the stability and progress anywhere. We are seeing these things at these levels of public service in Milam County.

It was not always so. Incumbent County Judge O. B. Harden, who has announced plans not to seek re-election, will complete 12 years in the job by August, 1978. During that time the interior of the courthouse has been remodeled, the new jail built, the tax office built and the Milam Museum assisted by county funding, all or most of this from federal revenue sharing.

Milam County and Bell County commissioners both have agreed on the need for annual audits. It's good sense.

It's good sense to give deputies the equipment they need in times of emergency. They are getting it. The new jail is a model of confinement. The museum through broad public and private support is a model for small city museums.

So the funding the incumbent commissioners court has set in use of additional revenue sharing is a good one. And congratulations are in order.

source of which there is an endless supply. Your body automatically replaces the pint you give in three days.

With the many unavoidable crisis we are facing, let's don't permit a blood crisis in our area.

We can not continue to expect other communities to supply our blood needs, any more than we can expect them to furnish our water supply, schools, or community improvement programs.

Yet, this is what is happening. The blood our hospitals use above what we furnish is coming from communities that give more than their share - more than their people are using.

This makes me very ashamed.

the water and the other had none that night. The next morning the empty one ran over too. So the 47 inch it was. San Gabriel was so high two gins washed away with all in its water line. Very many drowned. Since cotton pickers just came and no one knew how many in the families. Two years later a little boy was plowed up in a bottom field.

I am 88 years old. Just thought I would give you this on the terrible weather of 1921, September 8 to 9. We lived one mile south of Sharp. My address is still Buckholts, Texas.

Crime And Justice In America V Sex Crimes

By Lois DeFleur Nelson

Editor's Note: This is the fifth of 15 articles in a series exploring "Crime and Justice in America." In this article, Lois DeFleur Nelson, Professor of Sociology at Washington State University, discusses the involvement of women with crime, as both perpetrators and victims. This series was written for COURSES BY NEWSPAPER, A program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities. Supplemental funding for this course was provided by the Center for Studies of Crime and Delinquency National Institute of Mental Health.

Copyright 1977 by the Regents of the University of California.

For generations, crime has been associated with maleness in our society.

Reporting, recording, and writing about crime all reflected a basic value system in which the male role was dominant. Men were considered the primary perpetrators of most deviant activities. They were both the feared and revered participants in this sub-rosa world.

The few women discovered joining in criminal activities were regarded with distaste but were not treated too severely by the courts. But neither did they receive the full protection of the law - men were free to pursue many of their illicit pleasures, such as prostitution, with little fear of moral or legal recriminations, even though females were often the abused participants and victims.

This male dominance of the criminal world is now beginning to change.

As sociologist Freda Adler has noted recently, another generation of women will enter this criminal world, "a generation who, as girls, will think it perfectly natural to become carpenters or architects or steeples-jacks or senators; a generation who will dream of running away from home to join the circus or growing up to become desperados or gunslingers."

The traditional view of the role of women in crime is thus responding to changes in the role of women in our society at large. But the emerging picture appears full of contradictions and conflicts.

CHANGING PATTERNS

According to arrest data, women's involvement in property crime, such as theft, embezzlement, and fraud, has increased dramatically in the last decade, with the arrest rate among females rising almost three times faster than that among males. Still, the rate of female arrests is only about one-third that of men. Female arrests for violent crimes, such as assault and homicide, have remained relatively low and stable.

Consistent with traditional sex roles, prostitution is a relatively frequent female crime. Male customers, in all but a few cities, are ignored as parties to a criminal act.

The statistics on rape indicate almost a fourfold increase in male arrests in the last 15 years, but obtaining a conviction for this charge is still very difficult.

Furthermore, although men are reported and arrested for rape, the primary accusations and stigma still fall on the female victims. For example, a Wisconsin judge recently declared rape a "normal" reaction of a teenage boy to women's revealing clothing and a sexually permissive society.

In the judicial system, data from courts indicate that in the past women have tended to receive preferential treatment in terms of charges, convictions, and sentences. In some states, for some types of offenses, females still are treated more leniently than males, but there are signs of increasing equity or even more severity in convictions and sentences for women.

Nevertheless, women are still less likely than men to be sent to prison. Furthermore, if they do go to one of the few female institutions, they will find that there are few female institutions, they will find that there are fewer training and rehabilitation opportunities than in men's institutions, although the actual living conditions also tend to be less severe.

How, then, do we make sense out of this changing situation? Several factors have to be considered, including traditional societal sex roles and their supporting stereotypes. These sex roles have had a strong impact upon the ideologies and practices of those who attempt to control crime.

TRADITIONAL ROLES

The traditional activities for women in our society have revolved around the wife-mother and sex-object roles.

In the past, female involvement in crime has been seen as an outgrowth of these roles.

A woman might have been a shoplifter, child abuser, or prostitute and was probably motivated by her relationship with men, emotional instabilities, or sexual maladjustments. It was assumed that such traditional roles provided both the framework as well as the restraining factors for female participation in criminal activities.

It is within this cultural background that citizens and criminal justice personnel responded to female criminals. Witnesses and victims of female crime were hesitant to take action against women since they felt women needed society's protection and probably were not particularly dangerous anyhow.

Similarly, police exercised more discretion when they encountered a woman in criminal activities, and they seldom either brought her in or charged her with an offense. Courts also tended to be lenient with the relatively few women who appeared before them.

However, this paternalistic and preferential treatment had its costs. Throughout the criminal justice system, "a fallen woman" often experienced discriminatory, severe treatment. For example, prostitutes were regularly rounded up and treated with disdain; rape victims were embarrassed and humiliated.

These same themes and stereotypes were embodied in the scant social science studies on women and crime until very recently.

Many writers from a variety of disciplines offered social, economic, political, and psychological explanations of male involvement in criminal activities, but the few social scientists who focused on females emphasized primarily biological and/or psychological factors.

Women involved in crime were either maladjusted psychologically, inferior biologically, or had failed to adjust to the expectations surrounding traditional roles. These ideas prevailed until the 1970s.

THE WOMEN'S MOVEMENT

The contemporary women's movement that began in the late 1960s had had at least an indirect impact on crime and sex roles.

The movement has resulted in increased awareness and sensitivity to changing sex roles on the part of the general public, criminal justice personnel, and women themselves.

There have been pressures for official agencies to alter their policies and practices and there is some evidence this is happening. For example, sociologist Rita Simon interviewed police, prosecutors, and others in the criminal justice system, discovering this recurrent theme: "If it's equality these women want, we'll see that they get it."

If, indeed, this attitude is reflected in official behavior, then we would expect that there would be some decline in preferential treatment for women in the criminal justice system.

We could surmise, then, that some of the increase in reported female crime could be accounted for by these changes in official policies.

However, these same changes will mean that equal protection will increase, and that the often degrading and discriminatory treatment of women will decline.

We can speculate about other changes in sex roles and their impact on patterns of crime. For example, close to 50 percent of all women participate in the labor force, and increasing numbers are pursuing higher education. However, the majority of women still are employed in relatively low status clerical and service occupations and are not compensated for their labors commensurate with their training. Nevertheless, women are increasingly "Indeed we read almost daily of appointments left unfilled, appointees serving long after their term has expired, and in one instance we read of an appointment of a person already deceased.

"In recent months I have been traveling across the state advocating bringing state government response in favor of this proposal has brought me here today.

"Yes, I want to be Governor of Texas again.

"I believe that the office of governor needs inspiration and leadership that will truly represent the concerns of the citizens of Texas. We have been at the crossroads with our head stuck in the ground for too long. The really tough decisions that faced us six years ago have been neglected and today they have grown to be monsters. Had decisions -- any decision -- been made, we could have had the time to properly plan for the problems of today. Our caretaker Governor chose to take no action. Now we have major crises in energy management, education, natural resource utilization, transportation and many more areas with no time to properly study them. The gact is our Governor has put every tough decision off for the past six years and now wants us to put them off another four, while his stewardship continues to run for 10 consecutive years. I don't think the people of Texas want a dynasty in the Governor's office - and 10 years by any incumbent would certainly be so classified.

"We are going to have to grab state government back, shake the living daylight out of it and get it back into shape to deal with the problems that face us. The system will work for the people, if the people are given a chance to make it work. In our lives, each of us practices responsibility for dealing with the situations that affect us. Why not demand this of our governor as well?

After having spent 24 hours in tree tops in the valley of Little River near Maysfield, Hubert Atkinson, H. L. Yager and Joe Foster were rescued Sunday morning by B. P. Atkinson and Grady Little of Cameron at the cost of many hours and the perilous cost of the flood in a small row boat. In going to the rescue of the men, a fourth man, Porter, was discovered in a small tree top and saved.

On receipt of a telephone, message Saturday night, B. P. Atkinson of Cameron and Grady Little, expert boatmen set out by truck to the Elm Creek and thence to Walker's Creek, hiring transportation between streams and reached Little River at about 2:30 a.m. Sunday. At day break the men set out and reached the shaky little trees about noon and rescued the farmers. They were caught by flood waters while saving stock in the bottom lands.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Smith, Daniel, Denton Candidacies

PRESTON SMITH FOR GOVERNOR

Former Governor Preston Smith Wednesday has announced that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of the State of Texas.

Governor Smith's statement follows:

"Six years ago Texas stood at a crossroad. We had laid the groundwork that would lead to an equitable school finance system, a new property tax structure and a statewide energy policy. Personal leadership by the Governor's office, an enlightened legislature and meaningful board appointments, combined with citizen effort gave us a jump on the most important decade in the history of Texas.

"Today, however, after six unproductive years, three legislative sessions, and countless board appointments we still stand at that same crossroad. The caretaker Governor who has held office for nearly six years has not seen fit to provide or inspire the type of leadership vacuum, but we have the capacity for courage, hope, compassion, confidence and understanding when our leadership is dynamic.

"A governor can extract either group of these characteristics from the people by his action or inaction. Our present caretaker Governor has chosen not to lead or inspire us at all but rather to leave us at that six-year-old crossroad with out head in the sand.

"We have no new state taxes, but find me a man or woman in Texas whose local taxes haven't gone up because of inflation. The present state pay-as-you-go budget is running at an all-time high not because of sound management processes but because of windfall returns on Texas oil and inflation on goods and services generated in the state. If the present governor wants to take credit for no new taxes he should also take credit for the financial devastation caused by inflation.

"During these years our caretaker Governor has adopted a "get tough" policy for criminals, so the criminals have gotten tough and the crime rate is as high as it has ever been.

"To date there has been no property tax reform and the Texas Energy Policy consists of turning off lights in state buildings after dark as the absentee Governor goes to Washington every six months or so to protest action by the federal government that has hurt Texas. We should be in on the planning and we will be if I'm elected Governor next year.

"No governor can run every facet of state government, but an effective governor gets positive, common-sense leadership by the appointments that are made to oversee the state's public agencies. During my previous term as your Governor, concern for the needs of the people of the state and leadership qualities were the prerequisites that appointments were based on. Today, however, residency in Uvalde County or the amount of campaign contribution to the caretaker Governor seem to be the qualities sought.

PRICE DANIEL, JR.
FOR ATTY - GENERAL

Price Daniel, Jr. former speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, announced his candidacy for Attorney General of Texas.

The official announcement was at a campaign kick-off barbecue hosted by friends and supporters of the candidate in his hometown of Liberty. The event was preceded by new conferences in Austin, Dallas and Houston.

Daniel said, "My first priority as Attorney General will be making certain that the basic duties and responsibilities of the office under the Constitution and laws of this State are properly and efficiently attended to I believe the people of Texas are weary of hearing politicians promise new program after new program to provide services and solve problems when we already have more government bureaucracy than we can handle. What I promise is to first make sure that those nuts and bolts functions are those nuts and bolts functions are being fulfilled. This important office will be run to the best of my ability and under the guidelines set by the Constitution and statutes for the benefit of the people not the officeholder."

As Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives in the 63rd Legislature, Daniel advocated and achieved passage of a package of reform legislation designed to avoid recurrence of the Sharpstown scandal.

The package included: the ethics and public financial disclosure act; the campaign finance disclosure act; the open meeting act; the open records act; and the lobby registration and control act.

Daniel said, "I will zealously guard the independence that I maintained in my earlier public service and . . . will always represent the people of this State, and their best interests, in the highest ethical and professional standard and to the utmost of my ability."

LANE DENTON FOR CONGRESS

Calling for a "return to the basics" in American government Lane Denton of Waco today became the first announced democratic candidate for the United States Congress from the 11th District.

Denton, a six-year veteran of the Texas Legislature and a fifth generation Texan, said, "I have listened to the people of the 11th District tell me they want honesty and decency from government. They do not want handouts."

First elected to the Legislature in 1970, Denton has never received less than 67 per cent of the votes in his home county. In 1972, he won by 84 per cent and has received voter approval in 95 per cent of the precincts in his home county in his last four elections. McLennan County has a population in excess of 150,000.

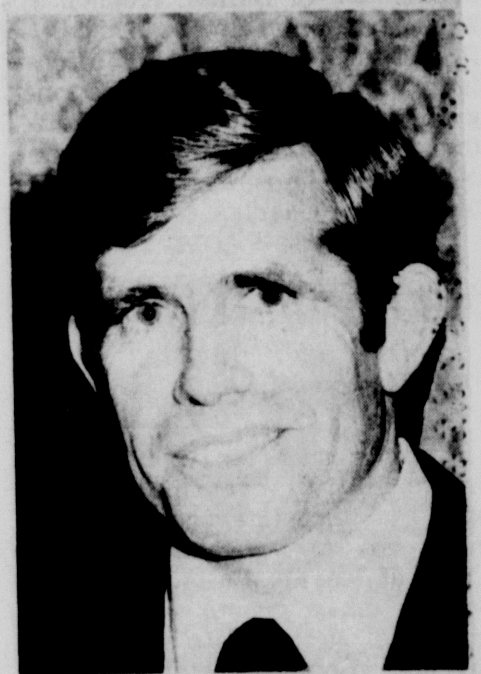

In Austin, Denton has gained the reputation as a fighter for the people against high utility bills—particularly the fuel-adjustment charge. Earlier this year, he opposed a $136 million rate request asked for by the utility companies and argued the case before the Public Utilities Commission. The utility companies were denied $77 million of their requested increase.

Denton announced for Congress in his hometown of Waco and then visited several cities throughout the District, stopping at a number of small businesses as he traveled through.

"Small businesses deserve our full support to preserve our free enterprise system," Denton said.

Denton, accompanied by his wife and 8 year-old daughter, told a crowd of hometown friends and supporters of the major concerns that people have expressed to him during his four months of travel through all 19 counties in the 11th District.

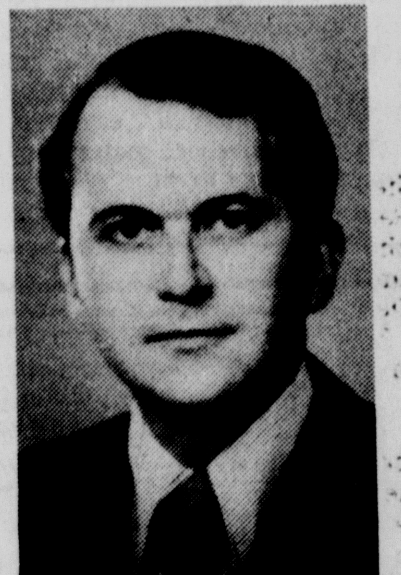

The 36-year old Denton, who owns and operates a 100-acre farm and raises cattle, explained that "too many bureaucrats in Washington believe that breakfast comes from the supermarket and not from farmers and ranchers who work the land."

LANE DENTON

The candidate has, during the past 14 years, studied the law, practiced law, made law, and taught law.

He served three terms in the Texas House of Representatives, including one as Speaker, and has taught legislative procedure and products liability as an associate professor of law at South Texas College of Law, Texas Southern University, and the University of Houston School of Law.

Cardinals Playing In City Tournament

The Rockdale Lobos have defeated the Cameron Cardinals 5-3. The Cardinals were held to just two hits by Rockdale Kenneth Scott was the losing pitcher.

In the second game of the day the Cardinals defeated the Salado Pirates by the score of 10-4. Trini Gonzales was the winning pitcher. Joe Reyes led Cameron in hitting as he went 3-4 and one homerun.

The Cameron Cardinals played Salado in the second game of the Cameron tournament Saturday and Sunday, September 17 and 18.

The Temple Eagles played the Temple Tigers Saturday in the first game and Cameron Cardinals will play Salado at 1 p.m. the second game. The tournament will be held at Colonial Field at the Fiesta Grounds.

Belton 7, Cameron 6

The same Yoe offense seen at LaGrange was back, grinding out 17 first downs to Belton's 7.

But, horror of horrors, so was the same score, seen last year at Belton: Belton 7, Cameron 6. It was the predictable result of a predictable battle in the Yoe pits, the trenches, wherever young men crack helmets and learn size and strength counts.

Three Tiger interceptions made the difference, two in the final quarter by Belton's Keith Fraser at the Tiger 14 and Ronnie McInis at the Tiger 40, this one with a minute and a half left, McInis returning to the Yoe 19.

Both were quarterback Wayne Steamer tosses, who otherwise had a big night with keepers for 75 yards.

Dean Lewis, the syncro-mesh sophomore, looked even better Friday night in delivering 113 yards rushing in 26 carries, while senior David Rosemond went 30 yards in seven.

Ninth-ranked Belton scored the first touchdown in a 54-yard drive. Quarterback Tim Seeger hit tightend Keith Fraser for 25 yards, setting up the score. Renaldo Stowers took the ball in from the Yoe 6 to score. Kicker Randy Sanders added the PAT to complete Tiger markers for the night, Belton 7, Cameron 0.

The second quarter ended on an ominous note when Sanders pulled in the first of the three Belton interceptions when he brought down a halfback pass from Rosemond aimed at wingback Curtis Wise.

The Yoe score followed the intermission in a march of 77 yards. It took 8 minutes and 19 plays with Lewis and Steamer finding the yardage and the Yoemen getting a pass interference call on Belton to set up a critical first down on the Tiger 20.

Steamer kept for 5 yards and the only Cameron score.

Tiger Gilbert Alcozer in effect decided the final score when he blocked the Yoe PAT kick. Fierce Yoe defense matched the critical plays of Yoe Tiger 200-pounders Mark Collier, Charles Garwood and Roy Smythe throughout the game.

The two Tiger fourth-quarter interceptions simply kept the Yoe backs grinding out firstdowns, but no touchdowns.

And Tiger drives died in the second half at the Yoe 43 and the Yoe 6 in the final seconds. Yoemen Jim Zalesky and Stephen Hollas led the stern Cameron forwards. Belton got 113 yards on the ground and 31 in the air, but Tigerhalfbacks caught those right tosses from the wrong guys, oemen.

Steamer and Lewis were the Yoe offense, finding gaping holes in the Big Red line all evening for almost 200 yards between them.

The lone Cameron pass completion went to Wise.

A crowd of about 4,500 watched the annual non-district confrontation. Bands from Belton and Yoe High Schools gave outstanding halftime shows.
